

FORTRESS GLOBAL INVESTIGATIONS LAUNCHES NEW PRE- EMPLOYMENT SCREENING PRODUCT

New York, NY, July 16, 2003 – Fortress Global Investigations has introduced a new pre-employment screening service designed to uncover resume fraud, criminal history and past firings prior to job candidates being hired.

Using its team of investigators, Fortress Global -- the rapidly growing investigations operation formed by former top leaders of the FBI, CIA, DEA, Interpol and former prosecutors -- will assist corporations and other entities in verifying the backgrounds and resumes of potential new hires.

“With our team of high-level investigators, we use a variety of investigative techniques to verify identities, social security numbers, criminal and civil records, reputations, past addresses, educational backgrounds, employment history, professional licenses, and motor vehicle records,” said Robert Seiden, Fortress Global’s President. “All the information we collect from these data sources goes into determining whether resume fraud has been committed and whether the potential employee is who he says he is.”

The new pre-employment screening product is the latest investigative product to be offered by Fortress Global. Headquartered in New York City, with offices in Great Neck, NY and London, Fortress Global specializes in all kinds of sensitive, complex investigations, including intelligence, background checks/due diligence, litigation support, and related security services.
