

ON THE MOVE

JULY 10, 2006

LAURA MANN

SECURITY

William Hackenson of Basking Ridge, N.J., has been named vice president of security services for Fortress Global Investigations Corp. in Great Neck. He has worked in federal law enforcement for 32 years, most recently as an inspector for the National Reconnaissance Office, which is part of the Department of Defense. Before that, he was special agent in the technical security division of the U.S. Secret Service, where he managed all security systems within the White House. Fortress Global provides investigative and security assistance to corporations, law firms and municipalities.